POLITICAL

Waters Are Again to Be Muddled
With Agitation For Prohibition.

Democrats See Plan of Haly-Beckham Machine to Obtain Control.

Local Democratic Ticket, Carefully Selected, Should Win Easily.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS INCAPABLE

As was expected, the old bogey prohibition has again come to the front to muddle the political waters in Kentucky, and as in the past will create more havoc in the Democratic party than in the Republican. The stinging and decisive defeat of McChesney by Stanley in the 1915 primary encouraged Democrats in the belief that the result would mean the elimination of the prohibition question in the Democratic party for some time to come. There was no question in the minds of the voters as to what the candidates represented. Messrs. Stanley and McDermott received the votes of those who favored either county unit or some liberal policy, while McChesney had been selected by the Haly-Beckham alliance to make the race on a strictly dry platform, Beckham choosing McChesney as the candidate and Haly choosing the issue, the latter believing that the time was ripe to unite all of the anti-saloon leaders and fanatics and secure control of the Democratic party. McChesney's nomination would have been the starting point of a reign of fanaticism in the Democratic party, the Beckham-Haly plan being to ostracize any Democrat that would not subscribe to their beliefs and then dictate the nominations in every city, town or hamlet in the State. That plan, if successful, would have put a premium on hypocrisy in the Democratic party and shoved to the front a lot of narrow-minded prohibition advocates, whose only claim to Democracy was that no one had caught them in the act of taking a drink.

Realizing that Beckham has lost caste with the present national administration and is growing weaker daily as a political power, Haly sees the handwriting on the wall and is once again attempting to secure control of Kentucky Democracy, with prohibition as the leverage to secure that control. The gathering here last week of prominent men from different sections of the State for the formation of an organization to bring the prohibition question to the fore bears all the ear-marks of Percy's fine Italian hand, several of the gentlemen named being life-long Beckham-Haly adherents. In that connection it is not known whether they all are Beckham-Haly supporters first and Democrats next, but this much is known, the two Louisville representatives mentioned, Col. P. H. Calahan and Henry M. Johnson, were supporters of Wood Maynor, the Bull Moose nominee for Mayor, against Mayor Buschmeier, the Democratic nominee in 1913, and they do say that Percy Haly flitted in and out during that campaign, giving all possible aid to Axton's candidacy. It would seem from this that Kentucky Democracy can hardly follow the dictates of the above self-appointed organization in conducting the affairs of the party. Practical politicians see that the Haly-Beckham plan is to kill two birds with one stone, defeat Ollie James for Senator in 1918 and re-elect Beckham in 1920.

Local political attention is being turned to the entries for the Democratic primary nominations next year, all realize that a good ticket will win easily, when it is taken into consideration that the local Republican organization in the recent election was beaten decisively, despite the handicap of the heaviest Republican campaign fund and negro vote in history. Some of the disgruntled Republican workers say that the fund was not used for election expenses, but that thousands of dollars were used to bet on Hughes all over the district, the local G. O. P. leaders taking their cue from Wall street, which believed that by betting a whole lot of money your candidate was sure of success. Another and detrimental feature to local Republican success is the crude tactics of the present Republican dictators. In every campaign for the past several years the Chilton-Searcy machine sends out the day before election a glaring circular to Democratic election officers and workers, warning them if they don't be good they will be prosecuted, citing the awful fate of the Republican election thieves in Terre Haute. The same old bogey circular was sent again this past election, being a sort of stop-theft method, while imported negroes were being voted, but the point is that the present Republican machine follows the old stereotyped methods and sadly needs the brains of an Albert Scott, George Long, George Todd or Ed Green, who are smart politicians.

Sheriff Charley Cronan is still getting the call for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, with ex-Mayor Head being among those mentioned, rumor having it that our ex-Mayor cleaned up, as they say, in steel stock and wouldn't mind having a little plumb in the primary. Al Emmer seems to have the support of many of the leaders for Sheriff, with Herman Cohn, Joe Overberg and Will McNally as mentioned entries. Those who study the game say that Will McNally will not even enter for two reasons, despite the Post's daily mention, first because a lawyer would hardly drop his practice for the position of Sheriff, and secondly and principally he could not consistently run for Sheriff with Charley Cronan a candidate for Mayor, both being known and identified with the same Democratic clubs and districts since their entrance into the political arena. The candidacy of both would be antagonistic to the opinions of Democracy, which believes that to the victor belongs the spoils as long as all the spoils are not placed in one basket. Either Mr. Cronan or Mr. McNally would have to retire and it is believed that Mr. McNally will step aside for Mr. Cronan, who in the opinion of many has the prior right.

Jailer Charles Foster on his splendid record will be unopposed next year, while W. H. Meffert or his assistant, Owen Cochran, will be the candidate for Auditor. Adolph Schmitt will be a candidate for City Tax Receiver, with Charles Milliken as a possible opponent. Andrew M. See, present Tax Receiver, will be a candidate for Auditor. Judge Boldrick, Thomas Walsh, Hunter Burke and Neal Funk are being mentioned for Police Judge. Judge Greene, Lorraine Mix and Tyler Barnett, are talked of for County Judge. Allen Smith, with the backing of John and Ed Barry, will be a good bet for County Assessor. Joe Ludwig is the first in the field for County Commissioner and is making a good campaign. Rumors of a dark horse against Pres Ray will not down, and with the rumor goes the story of a pot of several thousand dollars raised to aid the above dark horse. Talk of an opponent for Judge Shack Miller for the Court of Appeals is already being aired and Judges Kirby, Field and Lincoln are given frequent mention.

ENJOYABLE ANNIVERSARY

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the past year was the tenth anniversary celebration of St. Elizabeth's Auxiliary of the Knights of St. John on Thursday night of last week at St. Peter's Hall, Seventeenth and Garland. The hall was tastefully decorated with the national colors and at an early hour was thronged with friends of the ladies and the Knights. There was a great cheer when the drill team, attired in white and each member bearing a silk United States flag, made its appearance. The ladies were put through an intricate and beautiful drill by Col. Paul Breen, in which they acquitted themselves in a manner that would do credit to any military company now on the Mexican border. At its conclusion the assemblage participated in a grand march that led to tables that encircled the hall and were seated before a delicious fruit and plate supper. Following the supper Mrs. P. J. Breen, who presided, welcomed the guests in happy manner and stated the purposes of the auxiliary before introducing Rev. Father Edmund Kaiser, the Spiritual Adviser and speaker of the evening. Father Kaiser said it was a source of great pleasure and satisfaction to be invited to say a few words. The drill, he said, showed preparedness with a vim. Through endeavor and earnest effort there had been moral and spiritual development and charitable work had been advanced. In conclusion he asserted the auxiliary had been a source of great benefit to its members, upon whom he bestowed his blessing. William M. Higgins, the next speaker, congratulated the ladies and urged them to continue the work of organization.

The Celbridge Guardians marked "Read" the resolution of the Cork Guards against compulsory service, and a similar order was made with regard to the Corporation resolution calling for the release of the Irish prisoners in England. The Carlow Guards have unanimously passed a resolution strongly protesting against conscription.

According to London press dispatches, Gen. Sir Hugh McAlmont, writing to the London Daily Mail, in reply to a correspondent who said there would be no more rebellions, says it is always unsafe to prophesy unless you know, more particularly if your prophetic instinct is opposed to the facts of history. The observations on martial law, he adds, being the cause of continual distress are absolutely opposed to all the facts as they are.

The Duke of Bedford, in the London Morning Post, criticizes the Government for not giving the figures of any deficiencies in Irish regiments, and says that British soldiers transferred without their consent to Irish units serve to conceal the lack of Irish-born men in Irish regiments.

Ireland, says the Dublin correspondent of the London Times, "must be either persuaded or compelled to support her own soldiers in France. I think that Lloyd George, in his desire to pour oil into Redmond's wounds, exaggerated the recruiting blunders, for which Redmond can not disclaim all responsibility since he was a power at Dublin Castle during the heyday of Irish recruiting."

"Mr. Asquith's words made it clear," says the Spectator, "that the Government has not closed the door on the idea of compulsory service for Ireland. Looking back we recognize that it might have been better to coax Ireland along by gradual stages in company with the friends of the council. Shortly after 2 o'clock the initiatory ceremonies began, lasting until 5, after which the old and new members adjourned to the lower hall, where an excellent hot supper was served, about 200 being seated at the tables. President Hubbuch and others spoke words of cheer and welcome for the new members when the cigars had been passed. This initiation brings to a close a successful year for Mackin, and upon all sides are heard expressions that the present officers should be given another term.

NEED FOR MEN VERY URGENT

From Dublin comes news that leading organizations in Ireland have adopted resolutions denouncing plans for conscription. Among them are the Clones Guardians, the Cork Guardians, the Gellamore Urban Council, the Kerry County Council and the Athlone Council. M. J. Lennon, Chairman of the Athlone recruiting committee, declared he was unalterably opposed to conscription, and that voluntary recruiting could be made a success only when home rule was put into operation.

The Celbridge Guardians marked "Read" the resolution of the Cork Guards against compulsory service, and a similar order was made with regard to the Corporation resolution calling for the release of the Irish prisoners in England. The Carlow Guards have unanimously passed a resolution strongly protesting against conscription.

NEW ALBANY.

St. Theresa Auxiliary and St. Edward's Commandery, Knights of St. John, of New Albany, made an impressive showing Sunday morning at Holy Trinity church, where they attended mass and received holy communion in a body. They were welcomed by Rev. Father Curran, the pastor, who delivered a short but appreciative sermon.

tive proposals. In his newly issued book on "Distributive Justice" he adds another contribution to positive, constructive reform. He acknowledges that the matter is complex and tedious, but he stoutly breathes the stream of difficulties and clearly lays down certain ideas of change which will decidedly make for better and more equitable conditions. He does not rest content with merely showing in a clear-cut and convincing fashion the errors of the Socialists and Henry George men in their attacks on the justice of private property, but he likewise states that the right of private property has been greatly exaggerated and proceeds to outline certain proposals for relief in regard to our unsatisfactory land situation that will do much good. He does not merely refute radical suggestions concerning industrial affairs, but shows how through a legal minimum wage, the activity of trade unions and an increase in co-operation we could do much together with other State action, to equalize the present untenable situation in industry. He emphasizes strongly the necessity of distributing superfluous wealth upon the part of those who have more than enough to satisfy their necessary wants. We note, in other words, throughout his entire work a positive, constructive tone that is refreshing and welcome.

It is to be hoped that there will be in this country more efforts in this direction, not alone in treatises of this kind but in actual activity on the part of Catholics toward reform. They should enter into the life of the community—base their actions always on true Christian principles. These principles, they must realize, are decidedly positive in their essence, and against that action be Catholic attacks on Socialists and other radical propaganda should not be mere apologies for capitalist and agrarian exploitation and oppression. There must be the clear and positive view that present ills must be corrected, but in the right way. That is the thing greatly to be desired.

SELECTING BISHOPS.

Selection of the Bishops of the Catholic church in the United States, under a recent ruling of the Vatican, will be made under the old system which was in use here until twenty years ago, according to a dispatch from Rome published in the Tablet, the official organ of the diocese of Brooklyn and Long Island. The dispatch reads: "The new procedure for the selection of American Bishops, which has been ordered by Pope Benedict XV, through the Consistorial Congregation, abolishes the system of the submission of a 'terna' of names chosen by the irremovable rectors after the death of a Bishop to the Bishops of an ecclesiastical province. Pope Benedict's new order establishes in its stead a system of private inquiry by the Bishops of each province to select suitable priests, whose names are to be secretly balloted for at a meeting of the Bishops held under the presidency of the Archbishop. The names of those chosen are to be forwarded to Rome, so that the Pope can make a selection and an appointment immediately, avoiding in this way the delay which is declared to be the principal reason for the changing of the present procedure. A special feature of the new system is the strict secrecy 'sub gratia' enjoined throughout the inquiry and the selection of three names of those chosen by the Bishops."

Catholic priests expressed the opinion that the change makes the selection of the United States, with its twenty million Catholics, that of a missionary country. For a score of years the irremovable rectors have been selecting their own Bishops. After the death of a Bishop they would meet with the diocesan council and select the names of three men, which they sent to Rome. Under the new order the power reverts to the Bishops of the province and the rectors have no voice in the selection.

THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving day is always a day of happiness to good people. First every good Christian hears holy mass if there is mass on that day. Then mothers are busy preparing chicken, turkey and cranberry sauce, and any other goodies that they may think nice for dinner. To our readers and friends we extend sincere wishes that they may pass a pleasant day and be spared for many more.

DENIES OUR RIGHTS.

The British reply to the American note protesting against the trade blacklist published some time ago gives little satisfaction. It denies that rights of American traders have been violated and refuses to take the names of American firms from the list. It contends that the British position is justified by international law. Whether it is or not, there is little hope that we can change the attitude of Great Britain by writing notes. An embargo on the shipment of foodstuffs to England would likely bring a satisfactory answer.

CARELESS MOTORISTS.

Owners and operators of motor cars of all sorts should be made familiar with the fact that there is at present evident a decided revival of popular disapproval of careless as well as of reckless driving.

The fact that thousands of pedestrians daily escape harm from motor cars and motor trucks is not due altogether to the prudence of the drivers of those machines, but rather to the extraordinary precautions pedestrians are forced to take in order to avoid being run down.

MONEY'S WORTH.

When the militia set out for the Mexican border most Americans forgot in the excitement that something might be learned from the mobilization. They were heroes fighting for the welfare of the country.

Perhaps the cost was thought of, but efficiency and criticism was in no one's mind. In the four months, more or less, of mobilization the Government spent somewhere between a hundred and a hundred and fifty millions—over a dollar each for every inhabitant of the United States. Out of that money they got no settlement of the Mexican question, but they got, if they are willing to take it, a bitter lesson in American military efficiency. The citizen soldier—not a million over-night, as Bryan estimated—but a hundred thousand in a month, had not been tested since the Spanish war. Each citizen paid a dollar or more for the lesson. He is entitled to it.

GREETING WAS PREVIOUS.

Those who denounced President Wilson because of the one-sided character of his neutrality were very much surprised at the chorus of acclamation and satisfaction from the British and Canadian press that greeted the reported success of Justice Hughes. We had never had any illusions about the "pro-Americanism" of either of the candidates. Time and again we insisted that there was little to choose between them, and we hinted that of the two Wilson was the safer. Hughes' stand on our foreign policy was vague and wobbling at best, but his backers did not leave any doubt of where they stood, and therefore it was natural that the British press should hail Hughes as the champion of a strong pro-British policy. It is well that the British press showed its hand, as it enables President Wilson to estimate the good will of the British public for his administration at its true worth, and should determine his future course of action in reference to the continued aggressions of the British Government.

ALL TOGETHER NOW.

The election, the most exciting contest within the memory of the present generation, has gone into history and again the American people are as one. The Republicans naturally allege, as stated by the Toledo Record, that the people voted for a fictional Wilson. This does not alter the case. The American people voted for President Wilson because they believed that he stood for peace with honor, the supreme rights of the workingman and the highest ideals of American citizenship. Viewed in this light the most partisan Republican must concede that the heart of the American people is right. The election developed a good deal of feeling. In the confusion many charges were made. Now that the tumult and shouting have died the Government will go on in its usual stable way. The election is over, the captains of politics have departed and the camp fires are out. Now that President Wilson has been chosen by the American people every real American will uphold the hands of the helmsman in his task of guiding the Ship of State. There are shoals and ugly rocks ahead.

Accepting the decision of the electoral majority, the whole nation will accord to the pilot that loyalty which must be his if we are to escape the dangers that loom in front of us. Higher interests than those of party call for a union of spirit to maintain our national peace and prosperity with honor. Whatever may have been the attitude of the Catholics toward Candidate Wilson, they will do all in their power to uphold the hands and respect the person of Woodrow Wilson, the Chief Executive of the country they love.

The first lesson that the Catholic learns is to render to God the things that are God's, and in the same breath he is told to render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's.

The Field Afar, organ of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, in its current edition contains much interesting and valuable reading matter and an excellent story from the pen of Florence Gilmore. The Field Afar is published monthly at Ossining, N. Y.

By the way, has anybody heard of old Bill Sulzer, candidate of the "American party" for President in this campaign? The Catholic Advance thinks this is a case of mysterious disappearance that should be investigated.

MEXICAN DEADLOCK.

The American-Mexican joint commission which has been sitting for some weeks at New London and Atlantic City seeking an adjustment on the border that will insure co-operation between the two governments in the suppression of banditry and the protection of life and property in both countries, has reached a point of deadlock, which offers slight outlook for early settlement. But little is known by the public of the details of the negotiations, which have been kept secret, but it is evident that the Mexican Commissioners have doubtless under instructions from Mexico City, demanded impossible concessions, chiefly the immediate withdrawal of the American troops under Gen. Pershing. A full statement of the matter has been laid before the President and Secretary Lansing, who have approved the position taken by the American Commissioners. Unless a settlement is now speedily reached the conference must be adjourned, for it is obvious that nothing is to be gained by protracted discussions. Mexico is standing in her own way. The United States is ready and fully disposed to do whatever is possible to assist the neighboring republic. It can not, however, expose itself to irreparable injury by acceding to conditions which would leave it exposed to attack from a quarter in which there is no established authority and where conditions all make for veritable anarchy.

SALUTE THEIR PASTOR.

The people of St. Mary's congregation have arranged for an elaborate celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the pious and zealous pastorate of the Very Rev. Henry B. Westerman, who has been a faithful shepherd. First will be an entertainment by the children of St. Mary's school and St. Cecilia's orchestra at St. Mary's Hall on Wednesday night, when a splendid programme will be rendered. Thursday morning, the anniversary day, Father Westerman will celebrate his jubilee mass at 9 o'clock, assisted by Rev. Fathers Schumann and Weisz as deacon and subdeacon. Rev. Theo. H. Reyerman, D. C. of Jeffersontown, will preside at the sermon. An augmented choir and chorus of fifty voices, with orchestra and organ, will render the musical programme, directed by P. A. Stark, with Mrs. Stark presiding at the organ. In the evening the banquet will be held at the Tyler Hotel at 7 o'clock. Henry Bosquet will preside as toastmaster, and addresses will be delivered by Right Rev. Bishop O'Donaghue, Father Westerman and Joseph Wuensch. The people of the city and diocese extend their congratulations to the venerable priest who has served them so well.

building, has the structure well under way, and on the return of Mother Angels from the West the date for the laying of the cornerstone will be decided—probably December 8. PROGRAMME OUTLINED.

At a meeting here on Sunday of representatives from the twenty-one knights of Columbus councils of Kentucky, a programme for the ensuing year was outlined. State Lecturer J. A. Fuglein presided, and an address by Col. P. H. Callahan on "The Aims of the National Commission on Religious Prejudice" was a feature of the meeting. The purpose of the meeting was to further the lecture bureau of the State Council, which was created last year. Mr. Fuglein received from the representatives present the report of their projected programme during the coming month and further plans to have the speakers lecture in the cities and towns embraced by the State Council will be made. State Secretary George A. Burkley and Hon. Edward J. McDermott were among those present at the meeting.

CREATING INTEREST.

The cross country run, three and one-half miles, under the auspices of the Y. M. H. A., on the morning of Thanksgiving day at Cherokee Park, is creating great interest in Mackin Council, which has a crack team entered. This event is something new in this section of the country and is expected to draw a large contingent of athletic fans to witness its inauguration. Manager Spady has gotten together a team that he declares will clear the boards. In other words they will be far in front when the race is finished. Five teams are entered, Mackin's men being Farrell Kennedy, Edwin Jansing, Franklin Stigges, Morris Buttner, Michot, Bonnell and Shay, all courageous sprinters. The start will be at 10 o'clock.

BENEFIT A SUCCESS.

In an incomplete report submitted by Vice Chairman A. F. Martin it shows that a profit of over $800 was realized in the recent benefit euchre given for Miss Jenny Giles, some tickets and returns on one of the solicitation books still being out. The hand-painted china prize was awarded to Miss Ethel Savage, of 536 South Twenty-eighth street; hand-painted quilt prize awarded to Mrs. Hannah Callahan, of 535 West Breckinridge street, and the doll to Charles A. Best, of 202, Bank street.
